A CHRISTMAS JOURNEY

BY I. RICHARDSON.

"I ought to do; I live with them. You poor thing!" cried the warm-hearted girl, leaning with deepest sympathy towards him. "Are you indeed ruined? Oh, it is very hard at your age! Surely—surely my aunt will be kind to you, and give you a home at any rate! But never mind if she does not. I have not much, but little money of my own, and shall soon be of age. I will lend it to you, Mr. Lother, to start you again, and if you have made a million once, you can soon make a few thousands (enough to keep you comfortable, you know) again. Ruined—when you were so rich! I don't wonder you became ill."

He kept his head turned from her, and his tones were a little muffled as he replied, "We can talk over your very generous offer later, Miss Hilyard. At present I have another favour to entreat of you. Accompany me to your aunt's, and help me to bear the changed reception that I most probably shall get when she learns my change of circumstances. Do not refuse. I feel too weak and depressed to travel alone. You have done so much for me. Add this for my gratitude to repay some day," in intense earnestness.

She hesitated a little, then went out and made some inquiries among the porters. She found that to proceed that day on her own journey was almost impossible now; but a train was soon passing and bearing her back to the station she had started from. So she made up her mind to take care of Amelia's uncle, and escort him to Dolphin House.

"A cab stopping at our door!" cried Mrs. Lother, as she sat with her daughter in the drawing-room, and heard the wheels draw up outside the house. "Can it be, Amelia, that your uncle has come, after all? Goodness! and there is no fire lighted in his room; and it is so damp and foggy! What will he say to such a welcome?"

She bustled out into the hall, but a slight, girlish figure met her there, and seizing her by the hand, said, "Aunt, don't be cross. I have come back because—"

"Because you are a disobedient, wicked girl!" cried her aunt, too suddenly irritated to choose her expression with care. "How dare you thus annoy me and upset my plans? I don't care what you have come back for! Back you shall go again by the very next train!"

"Hush aunt!" said Blanche, coloring painfully beneath her aunt's harsh words, but touching her arm to draw her attention to another person waiting just within the hall door, whom Mrs. Lother had not observed. "I accidentally met with Amelia's uncle, Mr. Stephen Lother, and I turned back with him—entirely upon his account."

"Entirely at my request," said the man's deep, pleasant voice. "How do you do, sister-in-law?"

A. M. MELLIS, Esq., New York City, Dec. 6th, 1881.

Honolulu, Sandwich Islands,
Dear Sir: Your valued favor of November 18th is to hand, containing your order to which we have given our closest attention, and you may rest assured we have spared no pains to make this initial order satisfactory, having closely followed your instructions, sincerely hoping by fair dealing to secure your entire patronage in the Clothing Line.

We are willing to make you our Special Agent for the Hawaiian Islands, and consequently can offer you Special Inducements on prices, as we are thoroughly satisfied that a proper representation of our goods will, as has always been the case in the past, take precedence above all other makes of Ready Made Clothing, as we are here, driving our competitors out of the market.

We inclose you a large and varied selection of samples of our Spring and Summer Stock for 1882 now being manufactured. They comprise many Novelties and are especially adapted for the Tropical Climates.

We have shipped your goods as requested via Panama, San Francisco, and by steamer to the care of your Agents, and you will find in this letter your bill of lading, &c. Hoping for an early continuance of your patronage.

We remain, very truly yours,
The International Clothing Co., DONALD FITZGERALD, President.
N. B.—As it is my intention to visit the colonies of Australia shortly, I shall stop to see you on my way. Yours above.

With the above I take pleasure in informing the public that I have opened a full line of
